"Creating affirming and supportive school and youth programming environments for transgender and gender nonconforming youth"

Although conversations about gender identity and gender expression are becoming increasingly common in popular media, these terms and ideas may still be confusing. What do professionals who work with youth need to know about addressing the needs of transgender young people in schools, youth serving programs, and in their families and communities?

In this workshop we will share terms and definitions, highlight best practices and key policy considerations for supporting transgender and gender nonconforming young people. Common questions, including the sometimes confusing terminology of this topic, will be addressed. Participants will gain up to date information, resources, tools, and tips to create respectful and inclusive environments for transgender youth, their families, friends, and loved ones.
